Many Idahoans—including me—are concerned about federal spending. The economy is strong and the President's tax cuts are promoting job growth, but Congress has some work to do to bring spending under control.

I want to talk with Idahoans about this problem, and also explain what I'm doing to fight for a return to fiscal responsibility. I'm hosting a series of Town Hall meetings to open a dialogue with you and hear your concerns about the spending crisis.

I hope you'll join me.
